

Moy Eng
Interim Program Officer for Arts and Culture, The San Francisco Foundation

Moy Eng discusses fundraising and funding for the arts from her perspective as a development professional for diverse organizations (inc. for the Alvin Ailey Dance Theater Foundation), and as an art funder (inc. for the William and Flora Hewlett Foundation).

Online Now

David Blinder
Associate Vice Chancellor, University of California Berkeley

David Blinder contrasts fundraising practices in private and public universities, and discusses the impact that an organization's culture can have on fundraising tactics and relations with donors.

Online Now

Marc Spencer
Chief Executive Officer, Juma Ventures

Marc Spencer discusses how transformative educational and life-skills experiences can break the cycle of poverty for youth. By integrating employment in social enterprises, college preparation and asset development, Juma Ventures empowers youth to forge a different path for themselves and for their communities.

October 1

Ted Lempert
President, Children Now

Ted Lempert discusses how advocacy, politics, public service and programs sponsored by government and nonprofit entities can interact to improve the lives and futures of children.

October 1

Tod Bensen
Chair of the Board, WildAid

Taking a sabbatical from his career as a venture capitalist to work on ocean and other forms of conservation, Tod Bensen discusses how a VC business perspective informs his work as Board Chair of WildAid, a nonprofit that reduces demand for endangered species products.

November 1

Norbu Tenzing
Vice President, The American Himalayan Foundation

Norbu Tenzing discusses the sensitivities of organizations dealing with cultural differences and the impact of donations of all sizes in the Himalayas.

November 1

COMING SOON

Joe Elbaum - Executive Director, Congregation Emanu-El

Joe Elbaum contrasts the management and government challenges of the business and nonprofit sectors based on his experience as an IBM executive and as the staff leader of large congregations in New York and San Francisco.

December 1

Sam Cobbs - Executive Director, First Place for Youth

Sam Cobbs discusses how First Place for Youth enables youth aging out of foster care to make the difficult transition to independent living.

December 1

To ensure that these programs are easy to follow, you may view or subscribe to the INSIGHTvideo channel in several ways:

- At no cost:
 - www.moppenheim.com
 - iTunes by subscribing to the mOppenheim channel
 - Facebook at facebook.com/mOppenheimAssoc and Twitter at twitter.com/mOppenheimAssoc
 - via RSS feed by clicking on the small red icon at the top right of our site (moppenheim.com/rss.xml) and setting up your feed

- Via purchased DVD, which can be ordered at stores.ebay.com/mOppenheim-Associates.

Please note that proceeds from video sales are dedicated solely to strengthening the INSIGHTvideo program.